The Presidential Prayer Team

We are a national ministry dedicated to a focused mission of encouraging, inspiring and practicing PRAYER on behalf of our President, nation's leaders and our troops. We also seek to be a catalyst in the development of a robust prayer lifestyle. We do this by finding and PROVIDING tools to encourage prayer – through email, web, mobile phones and other communication tools. Ultimately, we believe that prayer will TRANSFORM our nation, one heart at a time.

We believe that Almighty God rules over the affairs of men... and moves in response to the prayers of His people. So, with unflinching devotion, members of The Presidential Prayer Team are working every day to raise the shield of prayer over our beloved country.

Please consider joining our membership — it's free! When you do, you'll join the largest group of intercessors in America, and we'll provide you with an extensive variety of tools and resources to assist and support your prayer life.

What some are saying about Presidential Choices

Regarding his nominee for SCOTUS – Supreme Court of the United States

“I am very pleased that President Trump has nominated Judge Neil Gorsuch to fill the vacant seat on the U.S. Supreme Court left by the late Atonin Scalia. Judge Gorsuch is an exceptionally qualified individual, with a proven record on issues ranging from the sanctity of human life to religious liberty to the Second Amendment. He will strictly interpret the Constitution as our Founders intended and the people of this country deserve. I hope that he will be confirmed quickly, especially since he was previously confirmed to the appellate court by a unanimous vote.” Congressman Mike Johnson (R-LA)

“We want to express our thanks to President Trump for nominating a man of such stellar quality as Neil Gorsuch to the Supreme Court. One of the reasons I endorsed Trump for president was because of the strong promises he made to pro-life leaders. Now, after less than two weeks in office, he is keeping those promises, and we are very encouraged. He has proved himself to be a man of his word.” Troy Newman, President Operation Rescue

“Perhaps the best articulation of Neil Gorsuch’s philosophy is an excellent article he wrote in 2005 for National Review. Gorsuch wrote: “[R]ather than use the judiciary for extraordinary cases ... American liberals have become addicted to the courtroom, relying on judges and lawyers rather than elected leaders and the ballot box, as the primary means of effecting their social agenda on everything from gay marriage to assisted suicide to the use of vouchers for private-school education.” This is a judge who gets it. Gorsuch understands the role of the judiciary and its constitutional limits. And he understands the three most important words of the Constitution. “We the People.”

Brian Burch – Catholic Vote

Regarding President Trump’s choice for Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission

WASHINGTON - “FCC Chairman Ajit Pai is winsome, fair, and an expert in the field. He is also a tried and true friend of First Amendment freedom. I am pleased and grateful that President Trump has chosen to make this stellar appointment, and we at NRB look forward to working with Chairman Pai on pivotal issues of liberty and electronic media as he takes on this important new role.” Dr. Jerry Johnson, CEO and President of the National Religious Broadcasters

Jesus Goes to Prisons March 4th.

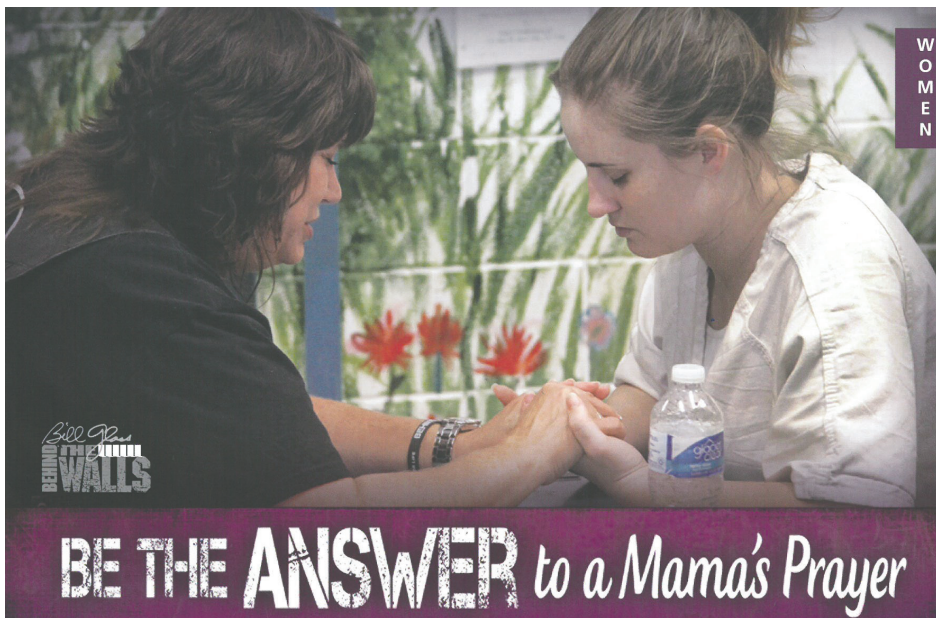

Ayn Messenger

Bill Glass Behind the Walls is a 40+ year old evangelism ministry that has seen over one million incarcerated people come to Christ. For a Bill Glass Behind the Walls Day of Champions, teams will go to six north-west Louisiana facilities on March 4th, AND YOU ARE INVITED. Why should you venture out of your comfort zone to go behind the walls? We all need Jesus, and this will be an opportunity to experience Evangelism on the Edge™.

There is an extremely large number of inmates in Louisiana that need to hear about the hope of Jesus! In fact, Louisiana has the most incarcerated citizens and the highest recidivism rates per capita in the US. What's more, Caddo Parish has the second highest in the state! We do not have to own that title!

Together, we can bring that way down. We can have a safer community. Many people recommit crimes, especially when they do not have a support system and can't find safe housing or employment when they get out of prison. Bill Glass Behind the Walls serves as an important first step in cultivating a desire in inmates to connect with the church and start a relationship with Jesus. If they come to know Jesus inside the walls, they stand a much better chance of staying outside when their time is done. A person whose life is transformed can influence their friends and families for the better. Many times, salvation helps break generational curses of incarceration.

If former inmates become productive instead of destructive citizens, it can save billions of dollars for our city, state and nation. That's billions of tax payers' money--yours and mine!

Devin Wyman speaks to a group of inmates

More than that, though, is the fact that Jesus commands us to share the Gospel with everyone including the "least of these." The Bill Glass Behind the Walls Day of Champions provides an opportunity to do just that!

Please put March 4th on your calendar and share this with all your contacts through public and social media, texting, letters, and personal contact. Feel free to copy, hand out, post the calendar attachment where & whenever possible. Call 318-458-2863 for more information.

About Bill Glass and "Behind the Walls"

Early on, Bill Glass noticed an unusual aspect of athletic success: When he talked, people listened. More than that, people asked him to talk. As a star football player in high school, an all-American at Baylor, and a defensive stalwart during eleven years in the NFL, Glass was regularly invited to stand up and say a few words. As his friends will tell you, Glass has always been an utterly straightforward sort of person. So when he stood to talk, he spoke about the things closest to his heart. He talked about sports, and he talked about Christ. And thus, a dynamic nationwide ministry was born.

His Dallas-based ministry is now called Bill Glass BEHIND THE WALLS. With a dedicated staff and volunteers numbering in the thousands, the ministry is known for its high-energy Day of Champions and Weekend of Champions events conducted inside prisons across the country. Bill says a board member kept badgering him to take his message into prison. "I kept resisting. I was frightened that I wouldn't fit in with street kids and gangsters in prison." After overcoming his fears, he saw dramatic results. "I was thrown into it kicking and screaming, but the response from the inmates was just unbelievable," he said.

He has spent much of the last forty years 'behind the walls.' He has taken along other pro athletes, champion weight lifters, magicians, tight-rope walkers – as well as race cars, stunt planes, motorcycles, and just about anything or anyone else – to draw prisoners out for a message of hope and deliverance. He discovered that prison inmates are just like everyone else: They will listen to what an athlete has to say, and they will respond to a heartfelt Christian witness. All these years later, Bill Glass is still talking, and people are still listening.

A Lack of Compassion in India

‘WORLD’S LARGEST
DOWN ON CHRISTIANS

Why would India block foreign donations to help poor children? The answer is Hindutva.

On January 13th, Compassion International told the sponsors of 130,000 Indian children that, barring an unlikely turn of events, it would cease operations in India in mid-March.

The announcement came a year after the Indian government told the organization that “it could no longer receive funding from outside the sub-continent.”

While the news dismayed Compassion’s donors, it shouldn’t have come as a surprise to those familiar with the deteriorating state of religious freedom in India.

Compassion’s announcement comes shortly after Open Doors International released its “World Watchlist,” which ranked the worst countries in which to be a Christian.

North Korea, of course, ranked first again. The next twelve countries are either overwhelmingly Muslim or, like Nigeria, are suffering from an Islamist insurgency—in this case, Boko Haram—that targets Christians.

an adherent of Hindutva and felt that Gandhi had betrayed the Hindu community.

The current ruling party in India, the BJP, is ideologically committed to the idea of Hindutva. As Vice News put it, Prime Minister Narendra Modi, in addition to being implicated in the 2002 massacre of 2,000 Muslims while governor of Gujarat, has also been “accused of promoting India’s majority religion of Hinduism to the detriment of Christianity, Islam, and other faiths.”

The ruling party’s commitment to Hindu supremacy is perhaps best reflected in the various laws prohibiting religion conversion that I told you about on BreakPoint a year ago. Six Indian states have enacted laws in the past several years that effectively ban conversions from Hinduism to Christianity or to Islam.

This is the political and cultural context in which Compassion’s decision must be seen. The Indian government knows that the money coming from outside of India is highly unlikely to be replaced by donations from within India.

It also knows that it can use all the help it can get: 44% of Indian children under five are underweight and 72% of its infants suffer from anemia. So why block Compassion International? Because nationalism in the form of Hindutva trumps helping malnourished children.

What can we do about it? The good news is that, unlike North Korea or Somalia, we do have some political leverage. India wants to increase its annual trade with the USA five-fold “over the near term.” Christians should let the Trump administration know that such increases must be accompanied by a greater respect for religious freedom on the subcontinent.

And of course we should pray. Curry told Christianity Today that he would feel “much better” if he felt that the “American church” was “at least praying” for persecuted believers.

At least, indeed.

Marching On Reflection on the March for Life in Washington, D.C. Casey Hough

On January 27 in our nation's capital, I joined thousands of people to march for life. While the wind was chilly, our hearts were warmed by our mutual commitment and zeal to see abortion ended in our lifetime. As we walked, tears and smiles shone on the faces of those around me. Tears for the brokenness and violence of abortion, yet smiles of hope and expectation that the pro-life cause was one year closer to reaching one of its objectives.

It was a surreal event for me. Of the people that gathered for the march, I only knew a few of them. There were more college students and young people than I expected. Furthermore, the crowd was ethnically diverse. People, it seemed, from every kindred, tribe, tongue, and nations, marched hand-in-hand, singing, cheering, and praying for the end of abortion.

While I understand that laws will not change the heart of a nation, I still believe that legislative changes matter and will continue to matter for the pro-life movement.

Enacting laws that hold parents accountable to their children, easing the financial hardship on adoptive and foster parents, making healthcare more readily available for pregnant women, insuring medical coverage for children with special needs, advocating for the dignity of all human life from the womb to the tomb, and defending and receiving those who are fleeing from persecution are all fundamentally pro-life issues. The pro-life cause will not cease with the end of abortion, yet, through the efforts of faithful people all over the world, I do believe the movement is strong and growing, which is not only a great encouragement, but also a tremendous answer to the prayers of God's people.

I am incredibly encouraged by the March for Life, yet we must not quit fighting for the cause of life. The battle is not over once Planned Parenthood is defunded and Roe vs. Wade is overturned. Nor is the battle against flesh and blood. Those who perpetuate the evil of abortion are not fundamentally our enemies, they are the captives of our Enemy. We do not return evil for evil, but we pray for their salvation. We pray for God to change their hearts through the gospel of Jesus Christ. We pray that they would wake up from their abortive Stockholm Syndrome and see they that have been duped into believing the lie that a fetus is not a person and that a woman has rights over "her body." We pray not only for the day that abortion ends, but also for the day when all life is regarded as precious in the eyes of God. Even so, Come, Lord Jesus!

Life March North

Sat, Jan 28, 2017 / Shreveport, LA

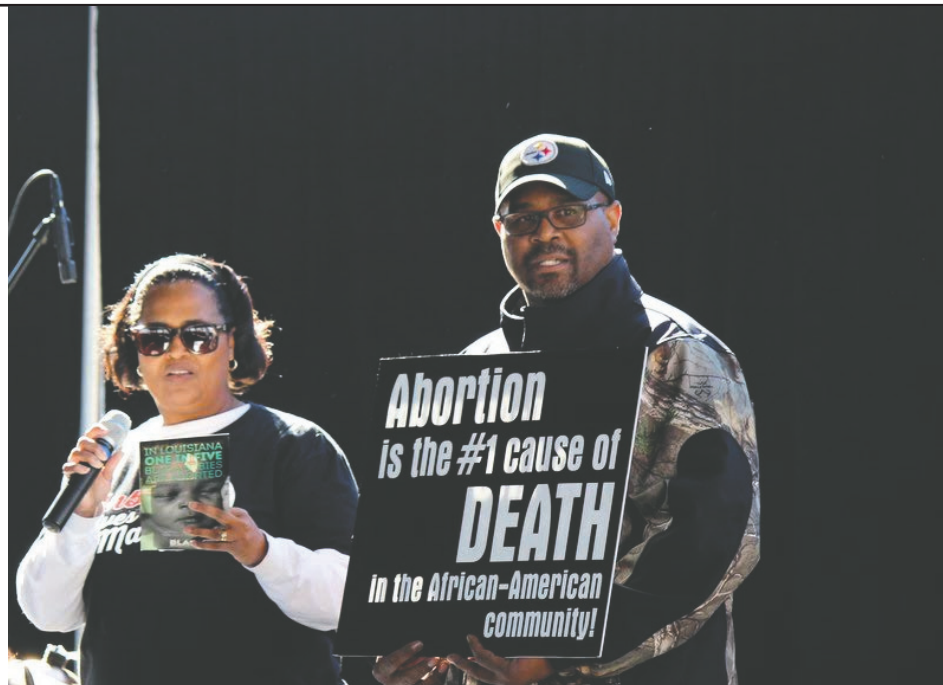

“Pro-Life! Pro-Life! Pro-Life!” The chants of thousands echoed across Festival Plaza in downtown Shreveport Saturday at the fourth annual Life March North. The theme for this year’s March - “Protect Them Both.” The Pro-Life community wants to express that the protection of the mother is vital to the protection of the baby. Because of this, many of the thousands of marchers, both young and old, carried signs that read “Abortion Kills Babies” and “Abortion Hurts Women.”

This March was not held without opposition from those who believe in the right to choose abortion. There were some there who were advocating for its continued legalization. However, those marching responded in love, compassion, and sincerity. Angela Pugh, of Bossier City said, “As I was marching, there were protesters scattered on the route, and all I saw from the pro-life marchers were smiles and responses that were peaceful, including ‘we love you and we pray for you.’”

Before starting out from the Louisiana Boardwalk, to cross the Texas Street Bridge, participants listened to various speakers and prayed together. At Festival Plaza numerous speakers including Congressman Mike Johnson, Representative Katrina Jackson, Lesley Duke (who gave a moving testimony,) gave encouraging words about the progress of the pro-life movement. Again prayers were offered under the direction of local ministers.

Those in attendance had an opportunity to visit and get connected with many of the life ministries who provide practical help for those with an unplanned pregnancy. Those from Shreveport/Bossier were: Black Advocates for Life, Heart of Hope (our local maternity home), The Ark-La-

Tex Crisis Pregnancy Center, Mary’s House, Embrace Grace, Sidewalk Advocates and 40 days for Life. Ministries from outside our local area included the Northwest LA Pregnancy Care Center in Minden, Imagine Life Mobile Ministry, 2 Birth and Beyond Crisis Pregnancy Center, and LA Baptist Children’s Home & Family Ministries. All the ministries represented Saturday stand to “Protect Them Both” and show that it is time to be the Pro-Life generation.

The Pro-Life community is experiencing an exciting time of growth and outreach. The March for Life North 2017 was the biggest yet, and many are believing it will be even larger in the years to come.

Human trafficking is a form of modern-day slavery. This crime occurs when a trafficker uses force, fraud or coercion to control another person for the purpose of engaging in commercial sex acts or soliciting labor or services against his/her will.

Enough Is Enough is working hard to make sure that parents know traffickers are targeting children -- mainly between the ages of 12-19 -- right in our own backyards, and are using the Internet to entice them into a face-to-face meeting. The traffickers use the same tactics used by sexual predators to groom and exploit children online.

Did you know...

- Traffickers often set up fake accounts online to "friend" a teen, and lure them into meeting up?
- Teens from all different social economic and ethnic backgrounds are targets.
- Sex trafficking is the 2nd fastest growing crime in the United States, according to the FBI.
- Law enforcement in Houston, home to Super Bowl 51, plan to increase resources to combat sex and labor trafficking. Large events are often associated with drawing in traffickers due to the large crowds that are present.

The Coalition to End Human Trafficking in Northwest Louisiana

Trafficking 101 Training

We know that trafficking is not limited to girls; victims can be girls, boys, women, men, LGBTQ, any race or any age. As such, it's important to arm the community with this information, so we can better identify victims.

Many residents do not realize human trafficking is happening in our community. In 2015, the FBI recovered 13 child victims of sex trafficking from the Shreveport-Bossier area. Our community has a network of law enforcement and social service providers working on the front lines to identify victims, to empower survivors, and to prosecute traffickers. In order to amplify this work and disrupt traffickers' ability to do business in Shreveport, we as a community must be informed and active. It is imperative that we educate our community and widen our safety net.

Statistics:

- The most common age any individual enters the sex industry in America is 12-14 years old (Shared Hope International, 2016).
- There were over 100 child sex trafficking victims identified in 2015 in Louisiana, with the youngest recorded at age six (Louisiana Department of Children and Family Services, 2015).
- There were 30 child victims of sex trafficking identified in Caddo Parish between 2014-2016. An additional 85 children were identified as high risk for commercial sexual exploitation. (Caddo Parish Juvenile Services, 2016).
- Members of the FREE Coalition have worked with victims of trafficking in Shreveport-Bossier as young as six years old ourselves.

Human Trafficking Prevention Month ended January 31, but the need for continued awareness is great. The most recent training meeting put on by the YWCA Northwest LA, located at 850-B Olive St. in Shreveport gave information on warning signs, and how to report it. Trainers were Shobana Powell, Founder of the FREE Coalition and Brittany Pearson, FREE Coalition and YWCA Staff. The panel was made up of representatives from Gingerbread House, Caddo Parish Juvenile Court, Project Celebration, FREECoalition, US Attorneys Office, and Purchased: Not For Sale.
