ARE YOU LOOKING FOR AN EASY WAY TO SERVE GOD?

Adrian Rogers

The word “patience” here doesn’t mean the ability to thread a needle, but literally means “endurance.” It means bearing up under some load, some challenge.

Are you looking for an easy way, a cheap way, a lazy way to serve God? All honey and no bees? A life of ease? You just want to say, “O, I’m so happy in Jesus.” Listen, this business of running this race means that you’re going to be at it with all of your heart.

You may be on a sick bed or in a wheelchair. But none is excluded. We are to run with endurance. When you watch someone running, do you notice how intense he is? If you’re in this race, you need to pray over it, you need to weep over it, you need to study over it, you need to work over it.

This matter of being saved and running the race is a full-time occupation. God does business with those who mean business.

“...and run with patience the race that is set before us.” Hebrews 12:1c

Wycliffe Associates Installing Print On Demand Systems for Quick, Easy Access to Printed Scriptures in Dangerous Areas

(Orlando, Florida, USA)— “Following Christ can be a death sentence in many hostile countries around the world,” says Bruce Smith,” President and CEO of Wycliffe Associates.

Each high-speed digital printing system provided by Wycliffe Associates includes a computer, printer, binder, laminator, and paper cutter. Local Christians are trained to operate the system, which is set up in a safe house. Then, when a language group is ready for printed copies of the Scriptures, they can be printed from a flash drive and discreetly hand carried and distributed.

“Even in a hostile nation where it is life-threatening to follow Christ, Print On Demand will allow Bible printing and distribution to proceed,” says Smith. “A group of believers secretly meeting in a closed country are already asking us for one of these systems. I am deeply committed to helping national believers share God’s Word, while doing everything we can to protect them. Now, with Print On Demand, God’s Word is available in increasing measures.”

“The systems not only print Scriptures and Bible resources with great speed, but they are also cost efficient,” Smith says.

Wycliffe Associates is currently raising $225,000 to provide 15 Print On Demand systems at a cost of $15,000 each for Christians in hostile nations who are without the Scripture in their language.

“Right now, we have the opportunity to provide a remarkable resource for printing and distributing God’s Word,” says Smith.

About Wycliffe Associates

Organized in 1967 by friends of Bible translators, Wycliffe Associates empowers national Bible translators to provide God’s Word in their own language, partners with the local church to direct and guard translation work, harnessing their passion and desire for God’s Word, and engages people from all around the world to provide resources, technology, training, and support for Bible translation.

Because millions of people around the world still wait to read the Scriptures in the language of their heart, Wycliffe Associates is working as quickly as it can to see every verse of God’s Word translated into every tongue to speak to every heart. Last year, 2,544 Wycliffe Associates team members worked to speed Bible translations in 73 countries.

Bonding with your Child through Boundaries

June Hunt

“No matter what age your child is now,” says June Hunt, “your goal as a parent is to help shape their minds and hearts, cultivating inner attitudes that will be reflected in their outer behavior for a lifetime. God intended the home to be an incubator for children, a place for kids to explore their worlds and become all He created them to be. Within this safe nest, the parent’s role is to nurture their potential, discourage their defiance and focus on their strengths.”

In Bonding with Your Child through Boundaries, Hunt and co-author PeggySue Wells explain why boundaries are essential in parenting, and share biblically-based principles for implementing them. The book offers 36 practical, parent-tested “how to” steps for making boundaries work. Topics include anger and aggression, back talk, chore struggles, homework hassles, meal-times and - everyone’s favorite - whining. The authors offer tips on what to say to your child when dealing with the issue and what the Bible has to say about the situation.

“When children are secure in whom they are -- and whose they are -- they are better equipped to make good decisions,” says Hunt. “The Bible says, ‘Discipline your children, and they will give you peace of mind and will make your heart glad’ (Proverbs 29:17 NLT). In short, boundaries can be a parent’s most powerful parenting tool.” Christian Newswire

“Bonding with Your Child through Boundaries is brimming with solid, biblical advice on the situations parents face day-to-day. Whether you’re struggling with your kids over temper tantrums or dishonesty or bullying, or even if you’re just looking for ways to structure chores around the house, this book has something for you.”

Jim Daly, President, Focus on the Family

“Every parent who holds biblical principles sacred must read Bonding with Your Child through Boundaries. Not only is this practical book grounded in God’s Word, it’s born out of real-life struggles. Don’t miss out on this immensely practical message.”

Drs. Les and Leslie Parrott, Founders, Center for Relationship Development, #1 NYT Authors, “The Parent You Want to Be”

JUNE HUNT is founder of Hope for the Heart, a worldwide biblical counseling ministry, and hosts the award-winning radio program by the same name. Her numerous books include “Seeing Yourself Through God’s Eyes,” “Healing the Hurting Heart”, “Bonding with Your Teen through Boundaries,” and “Hope for Your Heart.”

Defending the Faith - Linking Culture with Truth

Thinking Clearly about Science Are Science and Faith Separate Realms?

Stephen R. Patton, M.D.

One night recently, I was called to a hospital intensive care unit to see a patient in shock. This person had been recently treated with chemotherapy for cancer but had now developed fever, low blood pressure, shortness of breath, a very low white blood cell count and a number of metabolic abnormalities. There was also abrupt loss of kidney function, so they called me, a nephrologist. Under such circumstances a causal explanation or diagnosis was needed and in this case, a blood stream infection probably explained most of the features. Treatment followed accordingly. We'll get back to this case shortly.

Scientific research in old and new technologies surrounds us and is revolutionizing the way we live. Industries and universities conduct research. NASA studies the cosmos that surrounds us. Science is a method of studying the natural world in search of causal relationships or explanations. But actually, there is no universally accepted definition of science, what its methods are or what its conclusions must be. One definition I like deems science to be an impartial and objective investigation of the world around us. Science arrives at conclusions by a free and open, fair and unbiased deliberation only after considering all the evidence, not before.

In the American classroom, however, a second definition of science has trumped that definition such that a prejudice now exists. The U.S. Science Academy contends that for every phenomenon in the universe there can only be a material or natural cause. Supernatural explanations are not allowed lest the researcher or teacher lose his or her job. The academy says the supernatural, that is, God, belongs in the realm of faith, not science. But remember science is only a method; it doesn't draw conclusions. Scientists draw the conclusions.

When a scientist predetermines that only a natural explanation will be found he is working under a philosophy of science called methodological naturalism. Physicians, for example, do this all the time when diagnosing illness. As in my example above, I was not looking for a supernatural cause for sepsis and shock but a natural cause like infection. This is appropriate methodology when dealing with most lines of scientific inquiry. But methodological naturalism is not appropriate when studying the beginning of the universe, the origin of its design or the origin of life itself. Methodological naturalism applied to these lines of scientific inquiry paints God out of the picture before considering any evidence. Real science allows all explanations to be considered without prejudice.

So what about the secular claims about faith? What does faith have to do with science? The Merriam-Webster Dictionary defines faith as firm belief in something for which there is no proof. Under their definition you can believe something false if only you have enough faith. Rubbish! It's too bad these dictionary authors didn't consult a higher source, The Holy Bible, in determining the definition of faith. I think Hebrews 11:1 in the King James Version explains faith best: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." (emphasis added) My faith is not unfounded; it has evidence of historical, biblical, archeological, and scientific substance. In the remainder of Hebrews chapter 11, there is a recounting of some of God's people who had faith. They trusted God and acted on what they had good reason to believe was true. That's faith. It pleased God then and it pleases Him now. Science and faith are not separate realms. God's creation and its evidence of His handiwork through study of science help undergird our faith in the Creator.

Freedom Guard Chief Counsel Mike Johnson addresses a crowd of more than 400 pastors and church leaders at the organization's free seminar and legal update held at First Bossier on July 20.

Freedom Guard is making impact nationwide Likened to 'special forces' in culture war

By: Aaron Hubbard
Special to The Bridge

In battle, critical objectives are sometimes best achieved by a small team of special operations forces. Today, the defense of America's foundations—including our inalienable rights to life, to conscience, to free speech, and the free exercise of our religion—often requires such precision in the courts, and the court of public opinion.

In Louisiana and beyond, that work is being handled very effectively these days by a public interest law firm known as Freedom Guard. This not-for-profit legal organization is dedicated to defending faith and freedom through landmark litigation, strategic counsel, education initiatives, and public advocacy.

The work of the organization is led by CEO and Chief Counsel Mike Johnson, a nationally recognized constitutional law attorney who is a member of the Louisiana Legislature, and who formerly served as Senior Legal Counsel and media spokesman for the Alliance Defending Freedom, and as a trustee of the Ethics and Religious Liberty Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention. Freedom Guard's roster includes other senior attorneys and staff with decades of experience in the field.

"A movement is underway in America today to censor, silence, and marginalize people of faith, and to erode our most fundamental rights," Johnson explained to a crowd of more than 400 area pastors and church leaders at Freedom Guard's legal update seminar on July 20 at First Bossier. "We are concerned that many in our churches today have no idea of the storm that is coming."

Johnson should know. For nearly 20 years he has served at the forefront of America's culture wars. He has litigated and won high profile religious liberty and pro-life cases nationwide, been a principal author of pro-family legislation for many states and municipalities, and taught constitutional law seminars and continuing legal education courses around the country. Along the way, he has provided legal representation for states and municipalities, countless churches, and national ministries such as the Family Research Council, Focus on the Family, Concerned Women for America, the National Day of Prayer Task Force, Answers in Genesis, and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

At the seminar in Bossier—the first of five that Freedom Guard is conducting around the state in July and August—Johnson informed pastors and church leaders how to update their bylaws and policies to provide the greatest legal protections possible against the impending challenges to their rights of conscience and their biblically-based opposition to new mandates like same-sex marriage.

"Take these protective measures, and then encourage your congregations to stand strong," Johnson told the pastors. "If and when you are challenged after that, our attorneys are standing by to defend your ministries and your freedoms pro bono!"

As a not-for-profit, Freedom Guard provides its litigation and education services free of charge to all clients, and operates on the sacrificial gifts of supporting churches and individuals who support its critical mission.

By God's grace, that mission has thus far been extraordinarily successful. Among the recent successes of Freedom Guard's attorneys has been: the creation of U.S Supreme Court-approved policies allowing for the continuance of prayer at public meetings; the successful court defenses of pro-life laws and Louisiana's traditional definition of marriage (prior to the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Obergefell v. Hodges); and the ongoing defense of Christians' free exercise rights in the public square and at public schools.

"As dark as the culture becomes, we have good news," Johnson said. "The Truth can still prevail if we will have the courage and the stamina to defend it."

As the challenges to our inalienable rights become more frequent and more intense, the future of Christianity in America depends upon our willingness to stand with those on the front lines. Freedom Guard is a group that needs and deserves our fervent prayers and support.

Protecting Your Church or Ministry after the Same-Sex Marriage Decision

After the U.S. Supreme Court's dangerous decision in Obergefell v. Hodges (June 26, 2015), there is increasing concern that "sexual liberty" will now trump religious freedom, and begin to directly impact churches, ministries and individual Christians across our nation. Activist organizations are already targeting conservative Christians to legally compel their endorsement and participation in messages, ideas and events that violate their sincerely held religious beliefs.

FREEDOM GUARD attorneys have worked with our colleagues at the Alliance Defending Freedom, who have just published a very helpful LEGAL GUIDE that includes an overview and specific policy models to help ensure that every church and ministry has the broadest religious liberty protections available under the law. This guide can be downloaded for free by visiting the "Helpful Resources" page at our website: www.FreedomGuardNOW.org.

PLEASE NOTE that if your church, ministry or organization has specific questions or needs additional information or assistance with these matters, our attorneys at FREEDOM GUARD are happy to help. You may reach us by calling (318) 658-9456. Our services are provided pro bono.

SPECIAL NOTE FOR LOUISIANA CHURCHES: When it comes to fully protecting their doctrines and autonomy, churches in Louisiana should also be aware of an important caveat that exists in state law. Louisiana Revised Statute 12:222 sets forth the general authority of a non-profit corporation to "make, amend and repeal the bylaws of the corporation" in accordance with its articles of incorporation. However, there is a critical limitation provided in the second paragraph of that statute. Sec. 222(B) provides (emphasis added): "The bylaws of a corporation shall operate merely as regulations among the shareholders or the members, and shall not affect contracts or other dealings with other persons, unless those persons have actual knowledge of the bylaws."

While this has so far been a little known and rarely litigated provision of Louisiana law, at least one state appellate court has opined: "This statute evidences legislative determination that by-laws should affect relations within the corporation itself, but not relations between the corporation and external elements." Jones v. Briley, 593 So.2d 391, 396 (La. 1st Cir., 1991) (emphasis added).

There is thus an obvious concern with what many churches are currently trying to accomplish in amending their bylaws and articles to protect against future challenges by "external elements" (e.g., requests by persons who want to rent church facilities for same-sex marriages, or attend church events designed for married couples, etc.). Amending a church's bylaws is certainly important, but there is a risk in Louisiana that if a church does not make its policies publicly known, it may still be vulnerable to a legal challenge under a plain application of R.S. 12:222(B).

In an abundance of caution, we are advising Louisiana churches and religious organizations to make their bylaws "public." There may be a number of ways to do this, such as linking a copy of the bylaws on the church's website(s), and attaching a copy of the bylaws to any church facility rental applications and contracts, etc.

Please feel free to contact us at any time if you have questions regarding the above suggestions, model policies or recommended steps.

National Watchmen Summit:

Free event

August 24th-25th at Prestonwood
Baptist Church in Plano, TX .

Focus will be on legal protections for churches, legislative priorities for each state, and a plan to remove the gag order on pastors in the Johnson Amendment. Our P50 state leader pastors will be a key component, as it is a Summit, not a Briefing. We want conversation and creative and strategic plans to result. Besides a powerful lineup of speakers, including Tony Perkins, President of Family Research Council, we will have our P50s lead the discussion in state/regional breakouts and lead in developing plans of action moving forward in the new reality facing the church.

Meals also are free, but we need to know you are coming so that we can be good stewards.. Visit www.frc.org for more information and to register. Information regarding special discounts at nearby hotels is available at www.watchmenpastors.org/events.

Two Upcoming Volunteer Opportunities for You:

The week of August 24-29, the Fuller Housing Center Disaster ReBuilders will be returning to the Gulf Coast to help families who are still dealing with the effects of Hurricane Katrina 10 years later. It's called the "Back to Biloxi Build." For more information see <http://www.fullercenter.org/disaster-rebuilders>

The week of September 27 - October 2 will be the 2015 Millard Fuller Legacy Build in Shreveport. This will take place in Allendale where the first U. S. homes were built 10 years ago. This once forgotten neighborhood has undergone a remarkable transformation. Help continue that success.

Experience God’s heart for all peoples and encounter the momentum of the World Christian Movement.

Whether you are a high schooler or homeschooler, college student, business person, homemaker, church leader, or seminary-trained pastor.... Perspectives is for you! Perspectives is way more than a “course”, it is an encounter, an experience, an adventure with God through the eyes and experiences of Biblical historians, church planters, seminary professors and leading missiologists from around the world! It will truly live up to its name by significantly impacting your “perspective” on God and His purposes.
