So let us not become tired of doing good; for if we do not give up, the time will come when we will reap the harvest. So then, as often as we have the chance, we should do good to everyone, and especially to those who belong to our family in the faith.

If Uncle Sam Giveth Rights from God, Not Government

Eric Metaxas

For those out there who think our rights are given to us by government, remember this: What government gives, government can take away. I'll explain.

During a recent appearance on CNN, Roy Moore, the chief judge of Alabama's Supreme Court, debated the issue of same-sex marriage with CNN's Chris Cuomo, the son of the late New York governor Mario Cuomo and the brother of New York's current governor, Andrew Cuomo.

During the discussion, Moore said that "Our rights, contained in the Bill of Rights, do not come from the Constitution. They come from God. That's clearly stated in the Declaration of Independence." Cuomo then responded "Our rights do not come from God, your honor, and you know that. They come from man."

Cuomo added that the idea of God-given rights is "your faith [and] my faith, but that's not our country. Our laws come from collective agreement and compromise."

I can't help but wonder which country Cuomo is referring to. After all, the Declaration of Independence, by way of justifying the enormous steps the Founding Fathers were about to take, states "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness." And "That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men . . ."

These words, which previous generations of American school children were made to memorize, set forth an order that is 180 degrees from that suggested by Cuomo: first comes the Creator, who then endows his creatures with "certain unalienable rights," and then the creatures form governments to "secure those rights."

In essence, Cuomo is resorting to a kind of legal positivism, that is, the idea that "law is a matter of what has been posited," something "ordered, decided, practiced, [or] tolerated," and is not based on any deeper truth.

But that approach has serious flaws—as our own history bears out. In the run-up to the Civil War, for example, defenders of slavery appealed to the text of the Constitution, which permitted slavery without mentioning it by name. Opponents of slavery, or at least those against its spread into the territories, such as Lincoln, appealed to the Declaration of Independence and its ideas about God-given rights.

Sticking to man-given rights and appealing to "collective agreement and compromise" as Cuomo insists upon doing, would not have ended slavery. However, if our nation's leaders agree with Cuomo that the rights we possess are those the government has deined to give us, that would go a long way to explaining the erosion of religious liberty we are witnessing in the U. S. After all, the same government that can create a right to abortion and same-sex marriage can also take away the rights of freedom of religion and freedom of association. This may yield the results folks like Cuomo want, but it undermines the very foundation of human rights that we all claim to hold dear.

And that is really what's at stake. Years ago on this program, Chuck Colson said that human rights are "based on our most fundamental beliefs about humans being created in the image of God." Our "rights are not conferred by government, and so they cannot be denied by government." It was this belief that led Chuck to draft the Manhattan Declaration in defense of human life, marriage, and religious freedom.

More than half a million Americans have signed the Manhattan Declaration. So if you have not, or if you haven't even read this vitally important defense of our rights and freedom, please come to BreakPoint.org, click on this commentary, and I'll link you to it.

Chris Cuomo was right about one thing: God-given rights are what our faith teaches. If that's no longer true about "our country," Heaven help us all.

In case you missed it..

Louisiana Family Forum (LFF) has announced that Mr. Lawrence and Mrs. Varrie Player are Louisiana's Longest Married Couple for 2015. To them, we also extend our congratulations - for 80 years of marriage. Mr. Player, now 101 and Mrs. Player 95 have 8 living children, 35 grandchildren and 21 great grandchildren.

Because the Players were unable to travel to the Governor's mansion for the celebration, celebration was brought to them, to their home in Benton. Mike Johnson, LA. Representative for that district, attended and read the congratulatory proclamation from Governor Jindal and Ruth Flores of LFF came bearing flowers and gifts for the winning couple. Adding in family and friends, it was a lovely celebration.

Note that the third longest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kelly, also reside in Benton, LA. They have been married 74 years. Our congratulations certainly go out to them as well.

Defending the Faith - Linking Culture with Truth

Secrets of the Koran Current Wave of Islamic Terrorism Examined

by Stephen R. Patton, M.D.

The wave of violence unleashed recently by ISIS in the Middle East generates headline news almost daily. Newscasters carefully report executions of men, women and children by every manner of unspeakable suffering. But is what we also hear from the reporters about Islam the truth? Are the ISIS members faithful Muslims or a disaffected bunch of political radicals? Does their religion somehow endorse or justify their actions? Was Islam's prophet, Mohammed, a man of peace? News reporters' opinions vary but they are not authorities on the topic of Islam, past or present. Fortunately there are real experts like Don Richardson who has been studying the Muslim world for almost 40 years. He has lived and ministered among them in Indonesia. His book, Secrets of the Koran, documents the correct answers to the questions above. Only truth has value in apologetics and is a requirement for Christians to interact with Muslims at home and abroad. Richardson's book reveals what the Koran actually says and documents the life lived by Mohammed. Let's allow Don Richardson to answer our questions through Secrets of the Koran.

Islam means to submit. A Muslim is one who submits to Allah. This religion has two main sources of written authority. The first is the Koran, a book composed exclusively by Mohammed who lived from 571 A.D. to 632 A.D. He claimed the Angel Gabriel gave him the words which he dictated at various times to scribes in the early 600's as he remained illiterate throughout his life. These dictated records reflect his behavior and teachings. After his death, the scribed writings were assembled into the present book called the Koran. Another source of written authority for Islam are the Hadith (hah-deeth), the traditional accounts of things said and done by Mohammed or his companions. They were written by multiple authors.

Dr Richardson, in his book chapter, Violent Verses, Violent Deeds, quotes from among the 109 war verses in the Koran which speak for themselves: "Believers, retaliation is decreed for you in bloodshed." (Koran 2:178) "Seize them and put them to death wherever you find them." (Koran 4:89) "Strike off their heads. Strike off their finger-tips! ...because they defied God and his Apostle." (Koran 8:12-13) "Believers, make war on the infidels who dwell around you." (Koran 9:123) "God promised you rich booty and has given you this with all promptness ... And God knows of other spoils which you have not yet taken." (Koran 48: 20-21)

How about Mohammed's recorded deeds? Are they peaceful or violent according to the Hadith and other easily verifiable historical sources? When Mohammed was rejected as a prophet by Jews living in Mecca and Medina, the result was war. Richardson documents through historian Bat Ye'or that during this Medina period, Mohammed undertook no less than thirty-eight raids. Entire villages fled for their lives leaving their possessions as spoil for the Muslim victors. Richardson also documents through easily obtainable Muslim sources that Mohammed himself presided over the beheading of at least 500 Jewish men whose wives and daughters became sex slaves for Muslim men. Their sons were sold into slavery. Mohammed seized one of the widows, Rayhana, forcing her to be one of his concubines.

There are Koranic verses justifying each of those actions and that support the present violence in the Middle East and elsewhere around the globe. Such are the historical roots. How this has played out over history and what future plans are being made for the the world in the name of Allah are subjects for next time.

Sparks for Revival?

Focus on the Family's Middle East outreach team is based in Cairo. Concerning the recent beheading of 21 Coptic Christians, here are some facts, (not being reported by the media) and insights from the director there.

- These young Christians were in their early to mid-20s. They went to Libya in search of work to help feed their families living under the poverty line in Egypt.
- In the days and weeks leading up to their deaths, their ISIS captors tortured them and attempted to persuade them to deny Jesus in return for living.
- They all refused to deny Christ.
- They all died on that beach singing songs to Jesus.

From his perspective, these men were not mere victims but "more than conquerors," (Romans 8:37) whose ultimate sacrifice is a powerful testimony to their faith in Jesus. The Gospel message of salvation rises out of this suffering and persecution. As the Middle East was the birthplace of Christianity, the torch of revival that once burned bright for Christ can once again be lit by the sparks created by ISIS. www.focusonthefamily.com

Fuller Center provides people with affordable housing

Zero to 52 in 10. That's not jargon for automotive acceleration; it's shorthand for the progress the Fuller Center for Housing of Northwest Louisiana has made in Shreveport-Bossier in 10 years.

To celebrate the 10-year anniversary, the Fuller Center will kick off a Legacy Build on Sept. 28 on Clay Street in Allendale. The four houses planned for the week-long build will be named for four people instrumental in the initial efforts in 2005: Millard Fuller, Linda Fuller, Mack McCarter and Glen and Brenda Barton.

McCarter met with Millard Fuller following Hurricane Katrina to encourage his bringing the program to Shreveport to help with housing for those displaced by the storm. The Fullers and the Bartons were soon on the ground in Allendale, preparing land and planning houses. Over the years, both Millard Fuller and Glen Barton have died, but their dreams and efforts live on.

Legacy Build to attract former volunteers

According to Lee A. Jeter Sr., executive director of FCHNWLA, in addition to local volunteers, 200 people will be coming from out of town to participate in the Legacy Build. Many of these people helped in 2005-2007. The Fuller Center program provides low-income working families who don't qualify for traditional loans with affordable and safe housing. Those chosen for houses are carefully screened, and then they complete hours of "sweat equity" in the building process.

They are also educated in home ownership

Land comes from various sources

Most of the homes in Allendale have been built on land donated by the City of Shreveport, but other initiatives and partnerships have allowed the program to expand to Cedar Grove, Stoner Hill and Bossier City. The Catholic Diocese donated land in Cedar Grove close to their Community Center, and Asbury United Methodist Church has spearheaded the building in Bossier City with their Katy Builds, honoring a deceased youth member of their church.

Phase 1 of the Veterans Village in Stoner Hill was completed in May 2013 with four homes for previously homeless veterans; future building will bring the total to 10 homes. Those veterans had completed the Volunteers of America program for homeless veterans. The Veterans Village was a joint effort with VOA, Hope for the Homeless, the Renesting Project, Shreveport Community Development and FCHNWLA participating. This collaboration helped attract the attention of "Pink Floyd" founding musician Roger Waters, who channeled funds through the Bob Woodruff

Foundation, which helps "heal the physical and psychological wounds of war."

The 53rd house was completed this fall in Allendale through the sponsorship of First United Methodist Church, which has sponsored a house each year for several years. Currently, the ground work is being done for the Legacy Build. Work such as plumbing and electrical is done by professionals and the rest by volunteers. In October 2013 FCHNWLA welcomed its first AmeriCorps Community Builders Team. This group allows work to continue on houses on weekdays when fewer volunteers are available.

How AmeriCorps team helps

Adriana Thomas is the AmeriCorps program manager, and Michael Neely is the FCHNWLA construction supervisor. Together they train the AmeriCorps Community Builders in construction skills. The AmeriCorps members receive their first hands-on experience through building storage sheds for the new houses. They have also built ramps for handicapped accessibility, a partner program with North Highlands United Methodist Church. For their 675-hour term, AmeriCorps members receive a small allowance and an education stipend at the completion of their service.

Construction on one of four houses in Stoner Hill's Veterans Village begins with raising an outer wall on a cold January day in 2013. The houses were ready for occupancy by June 1. Plans include six more houses at this site which has easy access to the VA hospital.

Asbury United Methodist Church has completed its second house in Bossier City, honoring the memory of Katy Watkins, a member of the youth group whose heart was in mission and service.

Fuller Center programs vary

In addition to building new houses and ramps, FCHNWLA also helps rehabilitate older homes through its Greater Blessings program. This allows low-income home owners to get new roofs, plumbing and electrical work that are beyond their budgets.

The local Fuller Center has one fully operational income-producing entity and another soon-to-be-launched one. Since August 2012, the Fuller Center Surplus Store has been accepting donations from both the private and commercial sectors and in turn reselling the items to the general public. The store is full of lighting and plumbing fixtures, as well as cabinets, drywall, doors and windows to name a few of the building materials available. The store, located at 4221 Linwood Avenue, is open to the public Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. till 5 p.m.

Grocery & Deli to open in Spring

The second project is the Fuller Grocery & Deli located on N. Allen Street. Managed by Kevin Turner, it will be the only grocery store in the area and will provide convenient shopping for nearby residents and deli meals for residents and nearby workers. It also has the potential to serve the growing downtown Shreveport residential population. The grocery will feature fruits and vegetables from local sustainable farmers.

The funds generated by both the Surplus Store and the Grocery & Deli will help defray FCHNWLA operating costs, allowing monies donated to the Fuller Center to be applied to building projects.

Volunteers are welcome for both building projects and for work in the Surplus Store, and monetary donations help continue this important work. The FCHNWLA mission statement says, "The Fuller Center for Housing NWLA is a faith-driven and Christ-centered organization that promotes partnerships in an unrelenting quest to provide adequate shelter for all people."
